

Grim Trojan's™ Trivial Polyhedrals

This is a game for one or more players and one Host – Start play by having all players roll Percentile Dice (two ten sided dice... represented as D%). You read the die marked 10, 20, 30... 00 (00 = 100) first and then the die marked 1, 2, 3... 0 (0 = 10) second (example: a roll of 60 and 2 would be 62, a roll of 00 and 7 = 7 and a roll of 00 and 0 = 100). The player with the highest roll goes first, the next highest goes next and so on. The player with the lowest score plays host (if more than one game is played, the host does not have to roll the percentile dice for the next game and goes first). If only one player and one host, play 5 rounds using one each of the 4, 6, 8, 12 and 20 sided dice and total the points. Host and player switch roles and play another 6 rounds. The player with the highest score wins. Game Play – The host rolls the four-sided die (1D4). The number on the die is the number of points the first question is worth. The host then rolls the percentile dice and reads the question from the Questions Table that matches the number. The first player gets the chance to answer the question. If the first player is unable to answer it, the second player gets a chance. If they cannot answer the question it goes to the next player. Continue this until the question is answered or you return to the player who first was unable to answer the question. At that point, if no one has answered the question, the host reads the answer and no one gets the (1D4) points. Each player gets to answer a question worth the points rolled on the 1D4. If they are unable to answer their question it moves around the game table, as did the first question. Next the host rolls the six-sided die (1D6) and asks another question from the Questions Table. As above, the player who answers the question wins the number of points rolled on the die. If no one answers the question the host answers it, rolls the percentile dice and another question is read for the next players. The game continues until each of the dice – 4, 6, 8, 12 and 20 sided – are rolled. If a question is rolled more than once, it is read anyway (so remember the answers). After the last question is finished, the player with the highest total points wins.
